Abstract

The European Psychiatric Association has had a dedicated Early Career Psychiatrists Committee for more than 5 years. Its aim is to involve Early Career Psychiatrists (ECP) in the association, and develop training activities. Its four task forces focus on research, publications, associations and professional development. The dedicated scientific programme during the EPA Congress gathers ECPs from all around the world, and provides scholarship, travel grants, and social activities during the Congress and throughout the year. It contributes in creating an identity to European Psychiatry.
